

Argentina Prepares Against Strike Threat

CGT, Backer Of Peron, Issues Call

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's new government shunted troops and tanks to strategic positions in Buenos Aires Monday night and braced against a strike threat by the giant General Confederation of Labor (CGT).

The CGT openly defied the day-old regime of Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu. It threw down the gauntlet by calling for a nationwide walkout at midnight.

The government announced strike inciters would be jailed. The outcome could smash the foundation of the new revolutionary regime.

The strike call was issued after the government seized the CGT's two newspapers, first El Lider and then La Prensa, once a famed independent. The labor organization has published La Prensa since 1951 when ex-dictator Juan D. Peron confiscated it from its owner, Alberto Gainza Paz.

The CGT was long a backbone of Peron's political strength, but recent internal strife between Peronista and anti-Peronista leaders has cost the organization much of its effectiveness.

With sporadic strikes and labor disturbances already underway, the government prepared to take a strong hand against the unions. Aramburu hurried to Government House for a conference with a group of his top army supporters and a broadcast to the public warning that strike inciters would be jailed and brought to justice.

Informants said Andres Farmini and Luis Natalini, the CGT's two secretaries general, were arrested earlier Monday.

Clashes between soldiers and strikers were reported in Rosario, Argentina's second largest city 250 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. Dispatches from there said meat-packing and textile plants were

State To Use Uniform Traffic Arrest Ticket

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois State Police announced Monday to Illinois Municipal League convention delegates that a uniform traffic arrest ticket will be initiated Jan. 1.

The traffic safety enforcement device was described as a tool to give judges standards in dealing with punishment and officers a guide to providing adequate information for conviction.

State Police Lt. Francis E. Piper said its effectiveness would depend on official acceptance and public understanding. To bring this about, he said, 14 schools will be conducted starting next month for state police officers and all persons involved in traffic law enforcement.

About 45 Illinois cities now use a uniform traffic arrest ticket developed in Wilmette in 1948 to insure adequate records and to provide a notice to be sent to police and courts in the violator's home towns.

The new state police ticket involves copies for the person arrested, the arresting officer, the court and the secretary of state.

Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter said the new ticket will assist in the enforcement of the 1953 drivers license law under which he may revoke or suspend licenses of repeated violators.

TWO ILLINOISANS KILLED IN OPERATION SAGEBRUSH

FORT POLK, La. (AP) — Two Illinois soldiers were listed Monday by the Army among 21 killed in motor vehicle accidents on and off the post since Exercise Sagebrush began in western Louisiana in August.

They were Pfc. Paul F. O'Connor of 8809 S. Blackstone Ave., Chicago, killed Oct. 14 in an Army vehicle accident, and Pfc. Andrew M. Pielon of Box 115, Chatsworth, Ill., killed in a fork lift accident Oct. 25.

The mass Army-Air Force war games moved into the mock shooting stage only Monday. Thus far, all activities have been confined to transporting 150,000 troops into the area and deploying them.

Thousands Welcome Ike, Mamie On Return To Gettysburg Home

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President and Mrs. Eisenhower returned to Gettysburg Monday and a heart tingling home-coming welcome from "the people who are going to be our neighbors, God willing."

Thousands of them turned out in historic Lincoln Square, jamming the streets, perching on balconies and in windows, crowding onto roof tops.

Before the little, informal speeches could get under way, the high school band and what looked like most of Gettysburg's 7,200 citizens swung into "Happy birthday, dear Mamie."

Burgess (mayor) William G. Weaver told the chief executive and First Lady "how glad and happy we are that you have made Gettysburg your home." His daughter, Patricia, 13, handed Mrs. Eisenhower — 59 today — a bouquet of brilliant red roses.

Before driving the four miles to his country estate where he will spend another six weeks or more of continuing to convalesce from his Sept. 24 heart attack, the President spoke from a platform in the square to the beaming people surrounding him.

He told his "future permanent neighbors, I hope," that he and Mrs. Eisenhower "feel deeply honored that you should turn out today to welcome us to this area where we expect to make our home and which has been so long a part of the Eisenhower family's life."

As a young Army officer, Eisenhower was stationed here during World War I.

And he said he thought that Mrs. Eisenhower decided back in 1918 that Gettysburg was going to be their home on retirement. He didn't say when that might be.

This was the first time in three months that the Eisenhowers have been home. They spent a few days at Gettysburg just before leaving Aug. 14 for Denver for a work and fun vacation interrupted by the heart seizure.

Molotov Locks Iron Curtain On Idea Exchange

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov refused Monday night to remove the Iron Curtain barring free exchange of ideas with the West.

The Russian accused the three Western foreign ministers of submitting proposals that would open his country to "freedom for war propaganda... freedom for unrestricted subversive propaganda."

He ignored a warning by Secretary of State Dulles against dumping Soviet "discarded arms" in the Middle East under the guise of peaceful trade.

The 13th session of the Big Four conference failed to make any progress on the third and last item of its agenda — development of East-West contacts. The ministers will end talks on this item tomorrow morning, then return to deadlock.

Item 1—European security and German reunification. They will try to agree on some sort of joint communiqué at the final session of the three-week conference Wednesday.

It is not certain the Big Four will even be able to agree on another conference before they leave Geneva. Until Molotov refused last week to consider unifying Germany by free elections and ruled out the Eisenhower aerial inspection plan as a first step toward disarmament, a 1956 conference seemed a certainty.

Charge Executive Killing Wife, Sons, Self Was Thief

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A $25,000-a-year business executive who shot and killed his wife and two sons, then committed suicide Saturday night was pictured Monday by police as a thief who stole $200,000 from his employer in 10 years.

Allison R. Sanger, 47, was vice president and general manager of Brooks Co., Inc., a printing concern. J. Loring Brooks, president, said he fired Sanger last week after discovering by accident that he had been selling some of the firm's printing paper stock to a "fence," presumably in New York.

At first the theft was placed at $60,000 but today Brooks estimated the figure would run as high as $200,000, police said.

Sanger killed his wife Winifred, 45, to whom he had been married 21 years; his sons, Allison Jr., 14, and Russell, 9, and then himself.

Private funeral services—with date and hour kept secret—were announced Monday by a Springfield undertaker.

Sanger used a five-shot pistol. Medical Examiner William A. R. Chapin said he fired two shots into his wife's head and chest, one into Russell's head and two into Allison's chest.

That used up the five cartridges in the cylinder. Sanger had time to reflect, if he wanted to, while reloading. Then he fired a bullet into his own head.

Brooks said he believed Sanger may have "salted away" some of the profits from his transactions in the firm's label and greeting card stock. The printing company president said Sanger, when confronted last week, "made a point blank offer" to restore $100,000 immediately.

Chance started the tragic chain of events. Brooks said an "honest error" occurred in the company's bookkeeping and Sanger was questioned about it.

"Obviously," said Brooks, "that led Sanger to believe we had uncovered his embezzlements."

Racketeer Adonis Prefers Italian Exile To U.S. Jail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Racketeer Joe Adonis Monday chose exile in Italy over jail in the U.S.A.

His lawyer, William H. Collins, announced Adonis has promised the government to leave the country voluntarily by Jan. 1 and go to Italy, where the Justice Department claims he was born 57 years ago.

In return, Judge Walter M. Bastian of the U.S. Court of Appeals, sitting in the District Court, suspended an eight-month prison sentence for perjury and put Adonis on probation for five years.

Adonis, once a power in the New York gambling world, was given the prison sentence in April, 1954, for swearing falsely before the old Senate Crime Investigating Committee that he was an American citizen.

Probation was granted Monday with the extra stipulation that when Adonis leaves the country he go farther away than Canada, Mexico or the nearby islands and stay away during the probation period.

Kansas City Woman's Kidnap - Slayer Held In Frisco, Confesses

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI said Arthur Ross Brown, 30-year-old tough guy, confessed Monday to the kidnap slaying of pretty, young Mrs. Wilma Allen, wife of a wealthy Kansas City automobile dealer, last August.

Bureau agents and police arrested Brown in a San Francisco residential district Monday morning as he slept in a stolen car with two loaded pistols at his side. He did not resist, though police said he once boasted he would never be taken alive.

Brown also is wanted for shooting a sheriff's deputy in Wyoming, kidnapping his own wife in Kansas City, rape and burglary in San Jose, Calif., and auto theft.

An FBI agent testified before a U. S. commissioner that Brown confessed the kidnap slaying of Mrs. Allen, 34, while he was being questioned about other crimes.

The agent, whose name was withheld, quoted Brown as saying "I'm really wanted in Kansas City."

Brown went on to relate, the agent said, how he watched the attractive young mother enter her convertible in a Southside Kansas City shopping center and then forced his way into the car at the point of a revolver.

Brown told him, the agent said, that he forced Mrs. Allen to drive south of Kansas City and shot her twice in the head. He finally left her body in a field southwest of Kansas City where it was found three days later. He had stripped the body of rings and a wrist watch and taken Mrs. Allen's purse. Her bloodstained automobile had been found in a parking lot the day after she disappeared.

Pond planned to leave for San Francisco later in the day.

Medical authorities said Mrs. Allen, wife of automobile dealer Robert R. Allen Jr., was raped before her body, her hands trussed behind her back, was found. The FBI agent did not mention statements by Brown relating to this phase of the case, however.

Bail, on a charge of interstate transportation of a stolen automobile, was set at $20,000 early today, and then boosted to $100,000 after the FBI agent testified.

The car in which Brown was found sleeping had been stolen in Omaha, the FBI said. U. S. Commissioner Joseph Karesch continued the hearing until Thursday, pending arrival of additional information from Kansas City.

Brown was arrested after his aunt, Mrs. Theresa Foppiano, telephoned police that a prowler was near her home, and it might be her nephew. The FBI already had the residence under watch in expectation that Brown might show up.

Daniel J. Tobin, Once Head Of AFL Teamsters, Dies

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Daniel J. Tobin, 83, president emeritus of the AFL Teamsters Union and one-time power in labor and politics, died Monday night.

Tobin, who headed the teamsters from 1907 to 1952, died at St. Vincent's Hospital where he was admitted in late October suffering high blood pressure and heart trouble.

He was flown here from the Miami Beach home given him by the union, now led by Dave Beck.

Tobin made his home in Indianapolis until he retired from his $40,000-a-year presidency. When he became president emeritus and Beck became president, the union gave each of them salaries of $50,000 a year, and Tobin was given a $60,000 home in Miami Beach. Beck then moved the union's headquarters from Indianapolis to Washington.

Tobin had served as treasurer and vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

He was a member of President Wilson's industrial conference during World War I, and he was administrative assistant to President Roosevelt for a few months in 1940. He studied labor conditions in England for Roosevelt in 1942.

Tobin was born in Milltown, Malbay, County Clare, Ireland, but didn't know the exact date himself, because of inadequate records.

Two of his sons, Frank and Frederick, work in the teamsters headquarters.

His second wife, Irene, survives, with their daughter, Katherine. Also surviving are three other sons, Joseph, John and Edmund.

His first wife, Annie, died, leaving the five sons.

Policy On Mother, Who Was Passenger, Helped Break Case

DENVER (AP) — A young Denver construction and rest-aunt worker told Monday night how he tied 25 sticks of dynamite together to make a bomb that exploded aboard a United Air Lines plane near Longmont, Colo., last Nov. 1.

All 44 persons aboard, including the mother of the man, John Gilbert (Jack) Graham, were killed.

U. S. Attorney Donald E. Kelley said Graham, 23-year-old forger, had signed a "written admission."

Graham said he set the bomb to earn his mother's $35,500 flight insurance.

Graham said he had collected parts of his bomb on Oct. 18 or 19. They included the sticks of dynamite—comprised of 40 per cent explosives and 60 per cent packing—a timing device, a 6-volt dry cell "hotshot" battery, and two dynamite caps, each connected to about eight feet of wire.

He said he unpacked part of the contents of one of his mother's suitcases and replaced them with the bomb.

"I placed this suitcase in the trunk of my car, with another smaller suitcase and a briefcase which my mother had packed to take with her on the trip."

His mother, Mrs. Daisie E. King, 54, boarded the plane here for Portland, Ore. From there she planned to continue on to Anchorage, Alaska, for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Helen Ruth Hablutzel.

Graham's details of construction of the bomb and his maneuvering of his family so that he could hide the device in the suitcase, were reported Monday night by David Stolberg, reporter for the Rocky Mountain News.

Graham said he picked up his mother, wife, Gloria, and 20-month-old son, Allen, at a Denver Garage, where Mrs. King had stored her car, and drove them to the airport. He said he dropped them off at the terminal and then parked his car.

At the parking site, Graham said he bound the large suitcase with web straps. He said he carried all the luggage to his mother in the terminal, then waited about 30 feet away while she checked it onto the ill-fated flight.

"After my mother had finished checking her luggage," Graham said, "my wife and I went with her to the passengers' gate where we told my mother goodbye and watched her board the plane with the other passengers."

Graham said he watched the plane taxi down the runway and took his wife and son into the airport coffee shop.

"We were in the coffee shop for approximately one hour and as we were leaving I heard the cashier (say) that there had been a wreck of an airplane about 40 miles out of Denver."

Graham said he had put the bomb material in a long cardboard box and concealed it under a blanket in the trunk of his car.

He said he did not remove the bomb until "about 5:15 p.m. (MST) on Nov. 1," after he watched his mother, wife and son drive from their home to store the car.

'Behind The Wheel' Test For Driver's License Applicants

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Future applicants for Illinois driver's licenses will undergo a new test to measure their "behind-the-wheel" vision, Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter announced today.

The test was made possible by development of an apparatus, called the Illinois driver orthorator, by the Bausch and Lomb Optical Co.

Carpenter said the machine measures the important functions of vision such as sharpness, depth perception, color perception and ability to recognize vital roadside signs. The test will start Dec. 1. All driver's licensing examination stations are expected to be equipped by Jan. 1.

"It should be emphasized that this test is by no means a substitute for a professional eye examination," Carpenter said. "Those who do not meet our standards will be referred to their own eye care specialists for the prescription of glasses or other visual care. They may then return for a license re-examination."

The test will apply only to new license applicants at first but may be extended later to renewals, Carpenter said.

NEW SEARS CATALOGUE SHOWS 2% PRICE HIKE

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sears, Roebuck & Co. spring catalogue coming out in January will show an average price increase of about two per cent, T. V. Houser, chairman, said Monday.

Houser discussed rising prices at a press conference after Sears stockholders, at a special meeting, approved a split in the company's stock on a three-for-one basis.

"Many pressures are working toward higher prices at the retail level that have not shown up yet," Houser asserted. "They include higher raw materials and higher wages, without a proportionate increase in production."

He said Sears expects sales in the first six months of 1956 to exceed by 4 to 4½ per cent the record volume in the like period of 1955.

"About half of that gain will stem from higher prices of goods," he added.

Pilot, Bailing Out Of Jet Flying Supersonically, Ready To Go

LOS ANGELES (AP) — That day 8½ months ago started ordinarily enough for George Smith. Before it was over he became—painfully—the first pilot to bail out of a plane traveling supersonically and live.

The whites of his eyes were left bloodshot solid red. He bled in all parts of his body as his parachute snapped open. It is estimated he was subjected to a decelerative force of 40 times the pull of gravity. The 40 G's increased Smith's weight from 215 pounds to the equivalent force of 8,000.

If he had bailed out just two seconds later—at the estimated 6,500 feet altitude—his parachute wouldn't have had time to open.

His injuries and subsequent illness cut his weight to 175.

After months of treatment his right knee is a little stiff. Damage to his liver means he never can touch anything alcoholic.

And what does the 31-year-old North American Aviation Co. test pilot want to do next? Fly a plane 2,000 miles an hour.

He and the Air Force disclosed Sunday his historic jump from the super Sabre Jet last Feb. 28. The security classification secret had been removed after medical experts studied the case.

At 35,000 feet above the ocean, Smith said, the plane began to nose over. The control stick was jammed fast.

Soviet Backing For Seat For Mongolia In U.N. Splits West

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Russian sponsorship of Outer Mongolia's claim to a seat in the United Nations split the West Monday and threatened to block admission of 17 other countries into the world body.

Britain and the Soviet Union said they were ready to support the admission of all 18 new members, but the United States stood firm against Soviet-backed Outer Mongolia.

A British spokesman said the qualifications of Outer Mongolia were open to doubt, but that Britain would agree to accept its admission if this would break the nine-year deadlock in the admission of new members. Admission of 18 nations would bring U.N. membership to 78.

A Soviet delegation spokesman insisted Russia would not agree to admit any of the 18 applicants unless Outer Mongolia were included.

Canada's Paul Martin was reported ready to circulate a resolution calling formally for the approval of the 18 applicants, which include five Soviet bloc countries and 13 pro-Western or neutral countries, including Japan, Italy and Spain.

Mass Of Frigid Air Hangs Over North

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sea of cold air covered the northern states Monday from Minnesota to the Pacific Coast.

Temperatures in this frigid area around the middle of the day were under zero in Montana—10 below in Cut Bank and Great Falls — and ranged up to 20 above in other parts of the cold belt.

Fresh snow fell in the wintry region, with depths of two to four inches. A 14-inch blanket was reported at Yellowstone Park, Mont.

The weather bureau at Chicago reported the mass of cold air had moved very little in 24 hours.

Outside of the frigid zone conditions varied from moderate to warm. Readings mostly were in the 50s and 60s during the day in New England and the Ohio River Valley and in the 70s and 80s farther south.

Showers and local thunderstorms dampened the Appalachians from Georgia northward to Maine.

Temperatures around midday included: Washington, D. C., 75; Miami airport 80; Chicago 43; Dallas 82; Denver 62; Salt Lake City 32; Los Angeles airport 60; San Francisco 50; Seattle 17.

THAT VITAL SECOND BEST

Two recent events have served as a pointed and timely reminder that we pick our vice presidents too casually and carelessly for the good of the country.

Former President Harry Truman's memoirs, just published, disclose the peculiar maneuvering by which he was chosen for the Democratic vice presidential nomination in 1944.

And Edward R. Murrow, CBS commentator, recently reviewed in his program, "See It Now," the whole history of the vice presidential office from its beginning in constitutional discussions to the present time.

What emerges is pretty plain. It was the intent of the Founding Fathers that the nation should select as vice president the second best qualified man in the land. But under the system that has evolved we are lucky if we get the 42nd best.

Men picked originally as vice presidents have ruled over the White House 21 per cent of the time since George Washington's day. In the 50-odd years of the 20th century, three vice presidents have been elevated to the presidency by the death of the White House occupant.

Yet generally the nominees for this office are chosen in less time than it takes your wife to decide what kind of icebox she wants. Most of the time the national convention delegates merely give a halfhearted voice-vote endorsement to a decision taken by the presidential nominee and a few advisers.

The presidential choice can rightly insist that his running mate be in harmony with his general views. But some of the other considerations that have governed the decision hardly seem fitting yardsticks.

Men often have been put on the ticket to balance it geographically, or to lure particular categories of voters. Sometimes they are chosen to pacify factions within a party.

Their qualifications for duty in the White House, where they might easily end up, seldom get attention.

Presidential possibilities find their personalities and records exposed to blinding public glare. Vice presidential candidates at the most are the subject of a few hours' run-through in a hotel room.

This is no way to fill an office which can through one faltering heartbeat be translated into the presidency. Not just America but all the free world is deeply affected by our leadership choices.

The time is long past due when we should set about giving to the vice presidential selection process the party and public attention it properly requires.

Hereafter any party which picks its vice presidential nominee at the last minute out of a well-concealed hat deserves to be penalized at the polls. The frivolous political factors that govern the selection should be discarded. The public should insist that each party choose its second best man.

KNOWLAND IS NIXON THREAT

No one has been cagier than Senator Knowland of California about what he might do politically if President Eisenhower decides not to run in 1956. But now we have the first informed report that the Californian may become a presidential candidate.

Should this come to pass, it would be an event of substantial significance to the Republican party. For Knowland's bid would cut directly across the presidential aspirations of his fellow Californian, Vice President Nixon, who is acknowledged to be the leading GOP prospect right now.

According to the New York Times, it is possible to "speculate with confidence" that in the event of Mr. Eisenhower's withdrawal Knowland would declare no later than March 7 that he intends to enter the presidential primary in California.

He would do this as a serious candidate, not as a "favorite son" merely trying to hold the California delegation for another.

There are only two conceivable ways in which Knowland could take this step. He could put up a slate of delegates of his own regardless of what Gov. Goodwin Knight does. Or he could work out an arrangement by which he and the governor would collaborate in selecting a slate.

In the latter case, the slate might be pledged to Knowland at the outset or it might be nominally pledged to Knight with the understanding that the delegates would go for Knowland after one ballot. No one who doesn't know well the minds of Knowland and Knight can say whether either such plan is a practical possibility.

But if Knowland, with or without the aid of Governor Knight, could make a hard primary drive in California, it would mean nothing but trouble for Nixon. As has been so often said, the vice president could not hope to take the nomination if he could not go into the GOP convention with full home state support.

Nixon's men in California, working under wraps at this stage, are confident they can bowl over Knight if it should come to a Nixon-Knight showdown. Knowland's entry into the lists would, however, complicate the picture.

If all three men put in primary slates, Nixon, as the man with the head start, might be the chief beneficiary from the divided voting. But not necessarily. Three-cornered races often hold surprises.

If Nixon had to buck a Knight-Knowland combine with a slate of his own, he might find the going very tough.

A great catalogue of "ifs," all this. But it illustrates well the uncertainty that a Knowland candidacy would throw over Nixon's prospects in the 1956 Republican campaign.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Flush with success in films with real-life heroes, producer Aaron Rosenberg is heading for Turkey and his most ambitious biography yet.

If Rosenberg's scalp line wasn't so skimpy, he would be the fair-haired boy of Universal-International. In the past year has turned out the two biggest money-makers in the company's 43-year history.

The first was "The Glenn Miller Story," which U-I expects to draw 10 million dollars throughout the world. The No. 1 film in the country now is "To Hell and Back," the Audie Murphy story which the studio says will exceed that figure by a million. And Rosenberg has "The Benny Goodman Story" warming up in the bull pen.

The heavy-set producer, who was a smashing guard at U. S. C. in the early '30s, is not the kind to relax on his laurels. He was leaving for New York en route to Turkey, where he plans to film the life story of Kemal Ataturk, the founder of modern Turkey.

At first place, this seemed like an odd project for a man who has dealt with band leaders, war heroes and western adventurers.

"But this is the greatest story of all," Rosenberg enthused. "I think a good picture should be story of a man with a purpose. Here is a man who had a tremendous challenge. He had to fight the traditions of thousands of years, plus the Sultan and the church in order to modernize his country."

"The story has great significance today. Turkey is a strategic nation, being next to Russia. Its friendliness to the West is due to Ataturk. He felt that Western civilization was on the ascendancy in the world and he believed Turkey should westernize itself."

"How he decided this is interesting. During World War I Turkey was on Germany's side. He spent almost two weeks trying to convince the German commander to change his battle strategy. He finally won out and this led to the British defeat at Gallipoli."

"He asked the German why he took so long to be convinced. 'Because of your fez,' the German said. 'It made me believe you don't think like us.'"

"Ataturk had noticed that people stared at his fez when he was in Europe and did not treat him as an equal. So, against much opposition, he abolished the fez. He abolished veils for women for the same reason."

The producer is going to Turkey this time largely for research. Next summer he hopes to make the picture in Ankara, Istanbul and other locales.

In desperation he's plowing up most of it, refertilizing and re-seeding.

Chief Justice of the U. S. Earl Warren might end up with three doctors for sons-in-law. He got his first when youngest daughter Nina "Honey Bear" eloped to Las Vegas to marry Dr. Stuart Brien of Beverly Hills.

Oldest daughter Virginia is touring the Caribbean, but the report is that she's writing and calling a doctor in Los Angeles every day. An ex-boy friend of Virginia's is Ed Pauley, Jr., son of the wealthy California oil man.

he visited the Martin Aircraft Company to see the giant all-jet seaplane, the "Seamaster," in a test flight.

Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, U. S. Chief of Naval Operations, was along. After the flight he answered reporters' questions freely. But when the newsmen began questioning the handsome Mountbatten, he replied:

"Same with me."

Royal Air Force Group Capt. Peter Townsend may have lost more than Margaret. He may lost his group, too.

At one of the big receptions for Lord Mountbatten a large group of British naval and air officers was in a corner discussing the romance. It was the consensus that the RAF high command is upset about the publicity Townsend has received. RAF brass think it has been had for the RAF generally, and that he will be eased out of the service in a year or so.

Hint To Housewives: The fad in capital food these days seems to be spicy dishes, and the hotter the better.

Madame Ylima Deressa, wife of the Ethiopian ambassador, will testify to this. Other day she whipped a huge batch of special curry sauce to go with lamb and chicken for an embassy party celebrating Emperor Haile Selassie's coronation 25 years ago.

It was mainly for the benefit of American guests. She was worried, however, that the concoction, which had seven different spices in it, might be too hot.

Hardly. Every last morsel of the other day in Baltimore when curry dishes were scooped up by fore the reception was half over. "That curry was delicious," a U. S. diplomat's wife confided to Madame Deressa. "But couldn't it have been a wee bit hotter?"

One Of The Strongest drinks quaffed in Washington was also served by the Ethiopians. It was mead, made from honey. They had cases of the stuff on hand for the crowd—they thought.

The heavy drinkers went through the supply as fast as the gourmands leveled the buffet table. Then there was nothing to do but ask for Scotch.

The combination of his recent birthday, and his illness, brought the second largest flood of mail to the White House since Ike has been President. Slightly under 20,000 get-well and congratulatory messages were received in one week.

Still the all-time record for White House mail is the flood of protests received over the electrocution of the Rosenberg spies. Mail averaged more than 20,000 letters per week for a couple of weeks during that period.

Latest Ambassador of good will, Rep. Dewey Short (R-Mo) recently was on a junket through Europe. On a stopover at Locarno, Switzerland, the congressman, who loves to make a speech, was elected to respond to the greetings of local officials.

So he delivered a bit of stammering oratory. Trouble was he told the Swiss, among other things, that they should lay off watches and sell other products to America. That's the equivalent of a Swiss politician visiting Detroit and telling them to stop making automobiles.

★ DR. JORDAN SAYS ★

'Growing Pains' Are Usually Temporary, Inconsequential

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

A mother writes that her 14-year-old daughter complains that her legs hurt her on and off, especially when she has been on her feet a great part of the day. The mother adds that the youngster is less active than most girls of her age and she cannot explain this difficulty, though she worries about it.

There are, of course, several possibilities which may explain the pains which this girl complains of, such as flat feet, or improper posture when standing or walking.

The most likely explanation, however, is that this youngster is suffering from the condition which is commonly called "growing pains" and it is this possibility which will be discussed.

THERE IS some difference of medical opinion on the importance of growing pains. Most who have studied youngsters with this common complaint feel that these vague aches are usually unimportant and only occasionally of a serious enough nature to require active medical treatment.

In many children with growing pains the condition seems merely to be caused by growing so fast that the bones and muscles come under some strain.

In such cases, and if the abnormalities are mild and one expects them to be corrected by the passage of time, treatment—at least extensive treatment—is hardly necessary.

Good food, plenty of sunshine and adjustment through normalizing is sufficient to take care of the difficulty.

MORE SERIOUS abnormalities may be present. The help of an orthopedic surgeon in deciding whether braces or other special measures are necessary is then worth while.

A few children with growing pains seem to have something wrong with one or more internal glands. When present this also requires correction.

Sometimes the pains appear to be caused by diseased tonsils, adenoids or sinuses, and this is probably distantly related to the muscular rheumatism which older people get.

There is also a debate among medical men as to whether growing pains may be a mild form of rheumatic fever. Usually rheumatic fever comes on suddenly with swollen and painful joints and other characteristic symptoms. Rheumatic fever can and often does injure the heart.

SINCE AN OCCASIONAL child with growing pains develops heart trouble without any other signs of rheumatic fever, the possibility of a connection has to be considered. Some authorities feel that growing pains can be a mild form of rheumatic fever, and others disagree.

As a rule, children who have severe growing pains which do not disappear rapidly should be examined by a physician if one wishes to be sure that a serious condition is not present. Because the majority of such pains, however, are mild and temporary, one need not worry unduly.

Mushroom Soup Flavors Holiday Chicken Rolls

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Here are two family recipes we have tried. Yes, the family was enthusiastic in a large appetite way.

Holiday Chicken Rolls
with Mushroom Sauce
(6 servings)

One-quarter cup chopped onion, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 can (11 cups) condensed cream of mushroom soup, 1 cup chopped cooked chicken, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons diced pimiento, 1 recipe biscuit dough (or 2 cups biscuit mix prepared as directed on package).

Cook onion in butter until tender; blend in 1 cup soup and chicken. Roll biscuit dough into oblong pieces about 1-inch thick; spread chicken mixture over dough. Roll dough as for a jelly roll; cut into 6 slices. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F) about 15 minutes. Meanwhile, combine remaining soup with milk and pimiento; heat. Serve sauce with chicken rolls.

Meat Balls in Onion Sauce
(6 generous servings)

One pound ground beef, 1 egg slightly beaten, 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 can (11 cups) condensed onion soup, 1 cup uncooked rice.

Combine beef, egg, crumbs, milk and salt; shape into small meat balls (about 18). Brown meat balls well on all sides; if necessary, add a little shortening to keep from sticking. Add soup; heat to boiling; stir in rice. Cook over low heat about 30 minutes or until rice is tender. Stir occasionally.

TOMORROW'S DINNER:

Holiday chicken rolls with mushroom sauce, baked potatoes, buttered kale, seeded rolls, butter or margarine, grapes and pears, ready-mix frosted cup cakes, coffee, tea, milk.

Keeping Mate Slim, Trim Is Another Wifely Duty

The wife who watches her own weight carefully but lets her husband load up on rich gravies, second and third helpings of potatoes and apple pie topped with ice cream is shirking one of her duties as a wife.

Dr. W. H. Sebrell, Jr., former director of the National Institute of Health recently told a group of doctors attending the 28th annual scientific meeting of the American Heart Association that they must set their sights on the housewife as a means of curbing over-eating and overweight among the nation's people.

Dr. Sebrell pointed out that "it is the housewife who buys and prepares the food, times the meals and fixes the quantities of food to be served."

It is easier and more pleasant to cook a man all the rich food he craves and listen to him sigh contentedly when he finally pushes his chair away from the table than to serve him the kind of food he ought to have in the quantities that will keep his weight down. But that doesn't make it right.

FEED THE BRUTE BUT FEED HIM PROPERLY

If we women are going to do our utmost to keep our husbands in good health and prolong their lives we've got to become diet conscious not just for ourselves, but for our husbands.

It isn't going to be an easy job. For the man who likes to eat is made happy by the old system of feeding the brute.

But if we want to keep that man around a long, long time we'd better add a qualifying phrase to that old saw. It's not right to just feed the brute. We've got to feed him what is good for him, in quantities that don't permit him to put on excess weight.

It's our job. Whether we like it or not we'd better get busy at it.

3 Meredosia School Girls, Others Injured In Head-On Collision

Rebecca Vandeventer, 16-year-old Meredosia high school girl, was reported in good condition Monday evening following automobile wreck injuries, and two other girls who were with her when the accident occurred Sunday afternoon, were reported making good recovery. All three are under treatment at Schmitt Memorial hospital in Beardstown.

The Vandeventer girl has a possible fracture of the skull, and the full extent of her injury has not been determined.

At Passavant hospital in this city Mrs. Clara Weiss, wife of George H. Weiss of Versailles route 1, is receiving treatment as a result of a head-on collision between two cars at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the top of a hill on a gravel road, east of Meredosia. Her husband was able to leave the hospital after undergoing examination.

Five Students In Car
Five young people from the Meredosia community were riding in a car driven by Miss Lois Arlene Riley, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Riley of Versailles route 2. The three girls were in the front seat and two boys were in the back seat. Miss Rosemary Renz, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Renz of Versailles route 2, was the third young woman in the car.

Miss Vandeventer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lozell Vandeventer of Meredosia, was in a semi-conscious condition when taken to the Beardstown hospital. The Schaefer ambulance from Meredosia and Bates ambulance from Bluffs took the injured to the Beardstown hospital.

Miss Riley sustained cuts on her chin and other lacerations. Miss Renz suffered head and leg injuries.

The two boys who were in the back seat, Terry Steinberg and Darrell McDannold, both 16, escaped injury except for being shaken up.

Versailles Woman Hurt
Mr. and Mrs. Wiese of near Versailles, riding in the other car, were brought to Passavant, where she remained as a patient after emergency treatment. She has cuts on her chin, a cut on her tongue, and bruises. She is reported to be doing well.

State Patrolman Charles Bailey of Bluffs, who investigated the accident, said the cars collided at the top of a hill about one and a half miles west of the junction of State Routes 100 and 104.

Interpreting The News

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The attempt to apply artificial respiration to the dying spirit of Geneva seems to offer little promise of benefit for the West.

The foreign ministers of the Big Four powers have been fretting over some sort of formulas for a final statement to punctuate their Geneva meeting which has brought nothing but deadlock. The dispatches said the ministers wanted the statement to have a hopeful sound.

But the fact remains that having reached hopeless deadlock on the two basic issues confronting them

—German reunification and European security—the foreign ministers have nothing to be hopeful about. In the light of that deadlock, talk about the prospects for disarmament are carried on in a vacuum.

The Western world would have more to gain, it would seem, from a statement of failure and the detailed reasons for that failure. To sound a hopeful note at this particular juncture is to run the risk of playing directly into the hands of the Soviet propagandists. So long as the spirit of Geneva lives—and it must be recognized that essentially the Russians invented that ghost—the Moscow peace offensive can continue to gnaw away at Western unity without budging an inch from any important position.

The foreign ministers professed to find areas of agreement on the idea that atomic warfare and wars of aggression should be outlawed, that there should be reduction and control of atomic weapons. The Soviet Union claims credit for originating these ideas.

The Soviet Union is entitled also, however, to full and public credit for throwing up the obstacles in the way of realizing these aims.

There can be little achieved toward disarmament without international confidence, and Secretary Dulles himself pointed out indignantly that the Soviet stand in Geneva left little room for confidence.

If war is to be declared abhorrent, the definition should be extended to all forms of warfare, including the persistent political aggression in which the Soviet Union indulges. The current situation in the Middle East is only one case in point. The political warfare goes on all over the world.

The Western foreign ministers would likely profit from a bit of meditation on the latest off-the-cuff bymarks of the reigning boss of world communism, Nikita S. Khrushchev. In Moscow Saturday Khrushchev explained to Western correspondents that communism would eventually win all over the world, but not necessarily by revolution. It was a historical necessity, he explained, bringing the reporters up to date in their Leninism.

Khrushchev's gay sallies and his sly indication that he might have been careless or too talkative suggest the Communist boss is having a good laugh over the turn of events. He and his collective leadership colleagues have been able to torpedo the Geneva conference and yet hope to rescue the spirit of Geneva from the wreckage. Khrushchev and his collective need the spirit of Geneva at the moment far more than the Western world because it is an important part of the Soviet campaign to lull the free world into inactivity in the face of Red political aggression.

The events of last week killed off the spirit of Geneva. If it were properly buried, it should at least leave room for another spirit to take its place some day.

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING
SALEM, Ore. (AP)—This capital city of Oregon has too many bad spellers to risk naming a street after the Finnish composer Jean Sibelius, the city planning commission has decided.

B. O. Sundman of Helsingfors, Finland, asked the commission to use that name for a street. Commissioner Robert Powell said the commission recently changed the name of a street which residents found too difficult to spell. And even that one was easier to spell than Sibelius.

MORE JAPANESE JOBS
TOKYO (AP)—Japan now has 42 million persons gainfully employed, the Statistical Bureau reports. There are 710,000 unemployed, a decrease of 10,000 from the summer figures.

Pvt. Don E. Davis, Joyce Eddinger United At Alsey

GLASGOW—Miss Joyce Eddinger, daughter of Mrs. Helen Eddinger of Alsey, and James Arthur Eddinger of Rock Falls, Ill., and Pvt. Don E. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis of Florence, Ill., were quietly married Saturday evening, Oct. 29, at 7 p.m. in the Alsey Baptist Church with the Rev. Richard Shewmaker, pastor of the church, performing the single ring ceremony.

Miss Judy O'Reilly and William Eddinger, brother of the bride, both of Alsey, were their attendants.

The bride was attired in a blue faille street length dress with black accessories and wore a red celtic corsage. Miss O'Reilly wore a winter white dress with black accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

Immediately following the wedding an informal reception was held in the home of the bride's mother, with friends and relatives attending. The wedding cake was cut and served by Mrs. Harvey Moore of Alsey, aunt of the bride, and ice cream completed the menu.

Mrs. Davis is attending Winchester High School and will continue her schooling. She will make her home with her mother at the present.

Mr. Davis is in the armed forces and will be stationed in Maryland.

'Face The Nation' Notables Get Pancake On Their Faces

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK — When statesman and politicians "face the Nation" every Sunday afternoon on CBS-TV, they know that the nation will case the face on the television screen.

So it happens that an attractive former newspaper woman has the job of applying make-up to the faces of notables on the show. She is Beryl Denzer of Washington, associate producer of "Face the Nation," who wouldn't think of applying pancake make-up to her own face.

It's a fact of life that statesmen and politicians, being men, have such common masculine characteristics as bald heads, dark beards, bags under the eyes, long faces, round faces, receding hairlines, wild eyebrows and faint eyebrows. With this raw material Miss Denzer does the best she can—and her best is pretty good, her subjects agree.

"I didn't know him," one noted man's wife told Miss Denzer. "He looked positively handsome." This man's name is withheld to keep peace in his family.

It's true that everyone wants to put his best face as well as his best foot forward when he faces the nation. Only one, convulsed with laughter, has refused to be made up. He was President Lönar-di of Argentina. And in fairness it must be added that Miss Denzer was not present that day to influence him.

Eighty-year-old Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of Germany resisted make-up valiantly until Miss Denzer told him through his interpreter that Vice President Richard M. Nixon used make-up on television. The Chancellor replied what may be roughly translated as:

"What's good enough for Vice President Nixon is good enough for me." And Miss Denzer made with the pancake on the Chancellor's face.

The most common characteristics of the noted men who've appeared on the television and radio program is baldness, says Miss Denzer. "Their heads shine like light bulbs when seen through the camera," she reports. "But a little make-up and powder and they look fine. No I've never known a guest on the program to wear a toupee—and I've worked close enough to enough bald heads to detect a toupee."

It's a commentary on something or other that one can name bald-headed men without offending them, but no one likes to confess to bags under the eyes—even if he can barely see over them. It's amazing what a little special cream can do to obliterate baggy eyes. "Anti-carousing cream," one official calls it.

Nearly all guests at first adopt an "aw shucks" attitude to TV make-up. But then they willingly submit to Miss Denzer in the few minutes before they sit down with moderator Stewart Novins.

Only one guest, Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash.) ever arrived with his make-up already applied. But many have dashed off to catch planes and trains with their make-up still on.

United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis is the man who needed the least make-up. "Just a touch of powder on nose and temples," says Miss Denzer. "His brows are magnificent on television." Sen. Case (R-NJ) and New York Gov. Averell Harriman also needed little making up.

"MOUTH-PAINTED BY MERLE"—Two years ago, Merle Chisholm, pretty, 28-year-old St. Paul wife and mother, was a commercial artist. Today she is polio-paralyzed from the neck down. But she has wasted no time in self-pity. She set about to learn to draw and paint again with a pencil or brush clenched in her teeth. She won that battle and has built a new artistic career with a collection of exclusive "mouth-painted-by-Merle" Christmas cards and personal note paper. Her husband, Robert, is also an artist. Here their four-year-old son, Gary, watches in fascination as his mother draws a picture.

FCDA Head Realizes It's A Long Way From Paul Revere To Hydrogen Bomb

BATTLECREEK, Mich., Nov. 5.—A mild-mannered electrical engineer is spending almost every waking hour fashioning an intricate alarm system he hopes never will be used.

But should the moment arrive when the system is needed, the future of the United States may depend on how well it operates.

The man is Harry E. Roderick, 42, director of the Attack Warning Division at Federal Civil Defense Administration headquarters here. The system is a nationwide network to warn America's civilian population of approaching enemy planes.

Like a parachute, the warning net must be one that will work the first time. Atomic warfare offers no margin of error.

Roderick believes it will work. But the gnawing realization that any slip could mean thousands of deaths has added a grey tinge to his brown hair, given him an ulcer, and keeps him near a telephone 24 hours a day.

By law, Federal Civil Defense has the specific responsibility of the "dissemination of warning to the civilian population" in the event of an enemy attack. The Air Force has its own warning system for the military. But so far as Mr. and Mrs. John Citizen are concerned, the alert if it comes, will be sounded by FCDA.

That means Roderick and the men who work under him. Logically, Roderick and his crew of hand-picked attack warning officers work in close cooperation and consultation with the Air Force.

Roderick's men are stationed at each of the 12—soon to be 16—air defense divisions and the three air defense force headquarters in the United States. His officers at divisional headquarters have at their fingertips telephone circuits that tie them directly to some 200 key-points throughout the nation. These key-points are located in such places as state police and sheriff headquarters—offices that have communications personnel on duty around the clock.

From there the system fans out to 3,700 sub-key-points at such locations as local police stations and state police posts. It is from these points that an alert would be spread to local residents.

A national network ties the FCDA officers at air defense divisions with FCDA headquarters and the agency's seven regional offices.

The system throughout the 200 key-points is tested daily on a routine schedule. Two or three times a week surprise tests are held. But the weakness in the system—and Roderick is the first to admit it—is that regular tests are not held all the way down to the 3,700 sub-key-points. Some states, notably California, hold daily tests; others hold them less frequently but on a regular basis; some rarely conduct tests.

Roderick and his staff constantly urge local units to participate in tests, and he feels such efforts are showing results.

The FCDA warning system is geared to go into operation the moment the Air Force sounds an alert. By actual test Roderick knows that a "yellow alert" attack probably may be transmitted to all the 200 key-points and confirmation of receipt relayed back in eight minutes.

The FCDA attack warning officers would pass out the alert and could send along with it the information that some cities can expect attack in 30 minutes while others have three hours to get ready.

A red alert never has been sounded in the United States; a yellow alert just once—last May 5 when a temporarily unidentified flight of air force B47s caused the alarm to be sounded in 11 Western states.

Roderick remembers the day well. He was eating lunch a block from FCDA headquarters when one of his men phoned. "Better get over here," came the crisp message. "The Air Force is on the alert on the West Coast."

Actually, the alert lasted only four minutes. "But it was a long four minutes," Roderick recalls.

A native of Evansville, Wis., Roderick's experience in attack warning operations dates back to pre-Pearl Harbor days. In 1938, three years after his graduation from the University of Wisconsin with a degree in electrical engineering, he took a special Army Signal Corps course. When he was called to active Army duty in 1940 with college ROTC he was assigned to assist in setting up an air defense and attack warning system for the United States. At that time the Army had only the experience of Great Britain to guide it in establishing a warning network. Roderick traveled throughout the nation on the job. He left the service with the rank of lieutenant colonel, and now is a full colonel in the Air Force reserve.

The ground-breaking job with the military was to stand Roderick in good stead when he joined FCDA in 1951, only a few months after the agency was established, and began the work of setting up the civilian attack warning system.

At that time the Air Force was operating the system, but on July 1, 1952, the air force turned the job over to FCDA. The agency has since redesigned and added to the system to meet civilian needs. There isn't a typical day for Roderick. When he goes to work he may have to delve into the question of whether to place an attack warning officer in Alaska, discuss mutual attack warning measures with Canadian officials, locate an identification card for one of his officers in the field, approve the relocation of communications equipment—or operate the FCDA headquarters warning net in a "yellow alert."

Off duty, he leads a quiet life. His wife and three children have accustomed themselves to his always-on-call habits.

A ring on the two telephone lines in his home can send him into instant action. Some day this action and that of Roderick's fellow atomic age Paul Reverses may hold the key to the nation's survival.

GUNDERSON, DEEP SEA DIVER, DIES SUNDAY

CHICAGO (AP)—Charles Gunderson, veteran deep sea diver who helped discover bodies from the ill-fated Eastland excursion steamer disaster in 1915, died Sunday. He was 87.

Gunderson worked almost continuously for four days in the gigantic recovery operation. He said he lost count after he had recovered 100 bodies.

The Eastland, with 2,500 passengers aboard, sank July 24, 1915 with a loss of 812 lives after capsizing on the Chicago River.

A native of Norway, Gunderson began his career as a diver in 1910 and performed his last commercial diving in 1945 at the age of 77.

Woman's Club Meets With Art Association Nov. 12

Despite the long holiday weekend a near capacity crowd attended the joint meeting Saturday of the Jacksonville Woman's Club and members of the Jacksonville Art Association held at the Strawn Gallery with the latter group as host.

At 2:30 Mrs. John T. Hackett, president of the Art Association, welcomed those present. During her affable remarks Mrs. Hackett told the group that anyone is eligible for membership in the Art Association and new affiliates are most welcome.

The speaker for the afternoon was Dr. Sadayoshi Omoto, professor at Bradley University at Peoria. Dr. Omoto was presented to the assembly by Mrs. J. Allen Biggs, president of the Woman's club.

Both before and following the program ladies present enjoyed viewing the exhibit of Japanese Stencils and Textiles, provided by the American Federation of Art, on display in the Gallery. The exhibit was offered from Nov. 6 through the 13th with Art Association members serving as hostesses during that period. Many of the club members are also members of the Art Association. Mrs. Paul Black was in charge of the hostesses during the above mentioned period.

Dr. Omoto, speaking in typical class-room manner, explained the reflection of the artist in the political and social times during the Renaissance of the 15th century; into the Reformation of religious fervor of the 16th century and on up to the near present time touching briefly modern day Surrealism from the French movement so influenced by Freudianism.

Historic but familiar artists were named with their influenced explained according to the dictates of the era in which they lived. From a layman's viewpoint the speaker upheld completely the artist and his endeavor, denouncing the social injustice of the times that so closely governed his work and life.

At the conclusion of the program Dr. Omoto asked for questions, which were not presented from the floor but received during the social hour by the professor from enthusiastic listeners.

Before the group adjourned Mrs. Biggs made announcements. Members of the Woman's club are personally invited to the open B.P.W.C. meeting to be held Thursday, Nov. 17, at the Dunlap hotel when Judge Florence Allen will speak. Reservations and tickets may be obtained from Miss Thelma Bacon at the Thrift Travel office in the lobby of the Dunlap hotel. By proclamation of the Governor, Illinois will observe National American Home Week and Sunday, Nov. 21 to Nov. 27. New members were introduced one of which, Mrs. Ella Scott of Roodhouse, was unintentionally omitted in a previous account of the women joining in November. Mrs. W. G. Goebel, as chairman of the day for the Woman's club assisted in the arrangements for the meeting.

Japanese Atmosphere

Members of the Art Association provided a charming Japanese atmosphere. Hostesses were dressed in Japanese kimonos, furnished by Miss Frances Melton, who spent many years living in Japan. Punch and party cookies were served from an attractive table with Japanese appointments. A Japanese brocade, also through the courtesy of Miss Melton, had been placed runner-style on the antique dining table that was centered with an Oriental bowl filled with Fuji chrysanthemums and feather fern. Mrs. Biggs poured for the serving which had been arranged by co-chairmen Mrs. Samuel Weiler and Mrs. Wadsworth Applebee assisted by Mrs. John Bellatti, Miss Elizabeth Caldwell, and Miss Mary Belle White. Mrs. Walter Bellatti arranged the serving table.

Members of the Jacksonville Woman's club who served as hostess during the exhibition hours at the Strawn Gallery the past week including Mrs. N. J. Butler, Mrs. Clyde H. Landreth, Mrs. Lena Kerns, Miss Minnie Marie Spires, Mrs. John M. Marshall, Mrs. F. F. McCarthy, Mrs. D. C. Livengood.

Benston Insists All Vets Should Join Organization

The Morgan County Council of The American Legion met Thursday evening Nov. 10, at Jacksonville American Legion Home. Special emphasis was placed upon membership, especially of those veterans who belong to no veterans organization. It was pointed out that all veterans need to belong to some veterans organization in order to share the responsibility of protecting the less fortunate disabled veteran and the widows and children of deceased veterans.

The principal speaker of the evening was Lester Benston, Rehabilitation Officer of The American Legion, Department of Illinois. The speaker was introduced by Legionnaire F. A. Robinson, as one of the country's leading men in his field and that under his hand Illinois had again won the coveted National Service Trophy for outstanding service to veterans.

In his speech, Mr. Benston related that the trophy was won because The American Legion of Illinois was willing to spend more money for serving veterans than any other state. This he said exemplifies the real spirit and purpose of The American Legion which is an organization dedicated to serving our God, our Country, our soldiers, our disabled veterans and our veterans' widows and children. The speaker explained that the finances for the Rehabilitation Office came from Legionnaire dues and the annual sale of poppies. Last year the Illinois American Legion Rehabilitation Office spent about two million dollars in rendering service to veterans and veteran families.

Jacksonville Journal, Jacksonville, Ill., Nov. 15, 1953 7

In his concluding remarks, Mr. Benston said there are today many disabled veterans in hospitals and mental institutions, plus widows and children of veterans who need the help and comfort the more fortunate veterans can give. The same fellowship that caused a man to share his mess-kit or to crawl out into the line of fire to rescue a buddy should not be a trait to be thrown off at the time of discharge from military service. Far too many of the wounded who were rescued then are still in need of that kind of unselfish help. At home that kind of help can be most adequately instituted and accomplished by belonging to a veterans organization, service predicated and service dedicated: to God, Country, and the disabled of a war-struck family.

Chaplain Bob Reid pronounced the benediction after which Commander Slagle retired the Colors and adjourned the meeting.

PERFECT CADDY

BASKETBALL COACH Bill Beck and his son, Bill, Jr., own an unusual kind of dog — a golf ball retriever. Their dog, Dracula, is really a Labrador retriever, but the Becks use him as a caddy on the links in Kingston, R. I. Dracula is fitted with a special golf cart and harness to haul the bag of clubs around the course. Now here's the best part, as many a golfer will agree—when an errant golf ball drops into the water hazard, Dracula's retriever instincts are put to work. He wades in and drags it out. Also, Dracula, the perfect caddy, doesn't talk and he doesn't need a tip either.

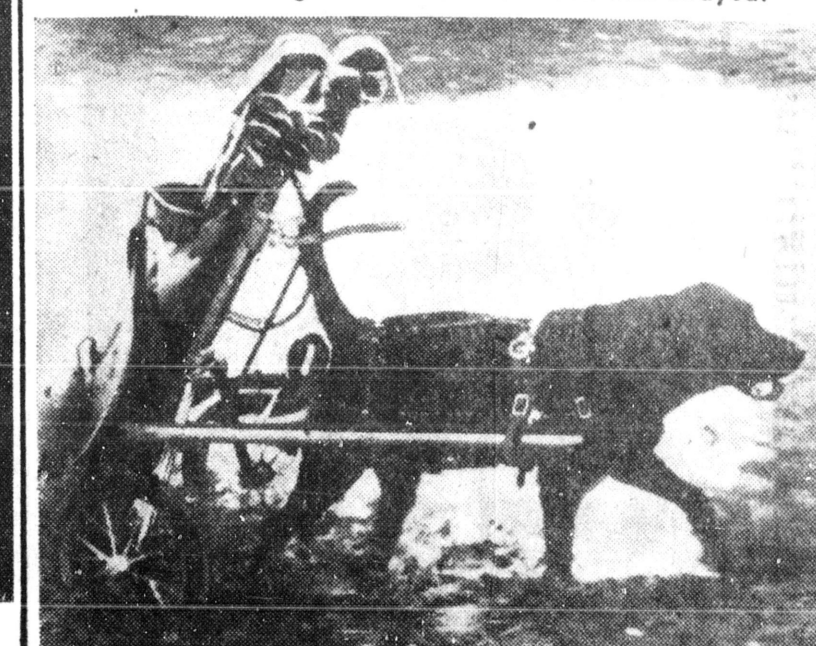

Dracula hauls his load onto course while masters trail.

Dracula is waiting patiently for the Becks to tee off here.

Into the water he goes in search of a ball that strayed.

He finds it and, like a good dog, brings it back to player.

Day of the Outlaw

By Lee Wells

Copyright 1955, by Lee Wells. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: An outlaw pack, strained by inner dissension, is isolated in Bitter, Wyo., by impassable roads. The gang, led by Jack Bruhn, has murdered one man, seized guns and terrorized the town. Dan Starrett, foreman of the Star ranch, has found one gun in town, in possession of Vivian McLean. He hastens to find other residents to tell them of the find.

XVIII

DAN'S eyes swept the Wyoming bar and flickered with disappointment. Phil was not here, but it would be an even bet that sooner or later he would appear. At a far table Tex Darrow, Juarez Smith and Egan sat in a deep whispered conference.

Tex looked up, caught sight of Dan and his dark eyes level for a long second. He nodded slightly and listened to something that Juarez said. Dan started toward the long, empty bar but saw Starrett seated alone at a table across the room. Dan walked up to Starrett's table.

"Seen Phil?" he asked in a low tone. Starrett looked up, eyes hard, and his lips barely moved. "No." He gave his attention to the top of the table.

Dan pushed his hat back. "Mind company, Blaise?"

"Leave it be, Dan. We had our say last night."

Dan's face grew warm and he felt hot about the eyes. He turned and walked to the bar, his back straight.

The front door opened and Dan saw Starrett straighten expectantly, pale eyes sharp and alert. Gene Hiatt stepped in. Starrett's shoulders sagged and Dan could see the disappointment in his face. The three outlaws looked up in covert alarm, then settled again to their discussion.

Dan watched Hiatt approach the bar and again he felt the extreme youth of the outlaw. Too bad, Dan thought, a kid like him would hit the renegade trail.

"Getting colder," Hiatt said. "Be snowing before long."

Dan read a loneliness in the man's eyes; it lurked like shadows far back in their depths.

"Looks bad to the north. Winters are hard in the valley."

"It's kind of like country I know," Hiatt said. "Only we didn't have big mountains like here."

"Further south," Dan nodded, "maybe down toward Kansas?"

Hiatt hesitated and a cloud touched his eyes, was gone again. "Down that way . . . maybe beyond. It makes no difference." He glanced at the mirror. "But I kind of like this country up here. It's big and I guess it's tough."

He and Dan talked on, Hiatt asking questions, Dan answering, feeling his dislike for the outlaw lessen. Hiatt brought his talk around to the town itself and then to the people in it. Soon he mentioned Ernie.

DAN looked sharply at him, his suspicions aroused again. But Hiatt didn't notice and he talked on. Dan answered more and more shortly as Hiatt again and again brought the talk around to Ernie.

"I don't know. You see a girl like her and you start dreaming about things . . . things that maybe won't come true but you still like to think of them, anyhow. She's sure a beautiful girl. Some man would be right proud of her some day."

"Ernie's too good for any of you crooked killers. She's clear out and beyond you, Hiatt."

Dan strode angrily to a nearby table. He dropped into a chair and saw Hiatt watching him with stricken eyes.

The door opened suddenly, and Jack Bruhn strode in. The whiskered outlaw, Denver, was at his heels. Tex Darrow straightened so suddenly that Dan knew the group had been discussing Bruhn. Juarez eased back in his chair, swarthy face inscrutable. Egan edged away from the other two as though he feared the implication of association with them.

Bruhn walked heavily to a table against the far wall and sat down. He placed his glass before him, shoved his hat back from his granite face. Starrett covertly eyed Bruhn, made a few sudden moves as though he intended to get up, and then changed his mind.

As though he could read the man's mind, Dan knew without doubt that Starrett worked up courage to make his proposition to the outlaw leader. But something held him back, some last shred of character that had escaped the corrosive acid of his ambition. Dan felt his own tension grow while Starrett made his silent struggle.

STARRETT'S chair scraped back and he stood up.

Dan himself straightened, eyes glued to the mirror. Starrett stood quite still, his jaw thrust forward, his fist clenched. He moved rapidly between the tables to come to a halt before Jack Bruhn.

Dan saw everything magnified as though he watched the final, physical death of a friend. He felt a deep sense of defeat and despair, as though Starrett closed a door on all that was of the past, making it worthless.

Bruhn looked up and Starrett came close, bent over him, speaking low and rapidly. Bruhn was surprised, and suspicious. It showed in the long searching look he gave Starrett before he barely nodded and Starrett eagerly sat down.

Dan watched, stunned. He could not fully believe that Starrett had taken this final step. But Starrett leaned forward, eagerly, face alight. Bruhn listened stolidly, eyes now and then cutting to Starrett, but more often looking out across the room. At the other table, Darrow and Egan watched curiously.

1955 Bears Best Since Championship Days Of 1940: Boasts Halas

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP)—Pro football pioneer George Halas, retiring this season after 35 years of coaching his Chicago Bears, is a man of guarded optimism.

After his Bears had racked up their fifth straight National Football League victory by harnessing Los Angeles 24-3 and thus moving into a tie with the Rams for the divisional lead, Halas let his guard slip a little.

"This is the best Bear team since the championship days of the early 1940's," he was overheard to say. "Wait a minute, what am I saying? I take it back. The season isn't over. We've still got four games to go."

"Now you take Detroit," he added quickly. "We play them there this Sunday. And we meet them here Dec. 4. We also have to face the Chicago Cardinals and Philadelphia Eagles. But the Lions are next, and we meet them on the upswing. Most everybody will figure we'll beat them, but the team you figure to beat almost invariably beats you. I'm really concerned about Buddy Parker's Lions, and that just isn't more talk."

Halas has to admit he is riding high these days.

"It gives a coach great pride to be carried off the field on the shoulders of his player," he said. "You can't beat team spirit, and that's part of it."

Halas, after getting his ride off the field yesterday, also found that he was the center of autograph seekers. As he was being hounded for signatures by his two grandchildren, Mike, 11, and Tim, 9, McCaskey, had a suggestion.

"Grandpa," they said. "Why don't you just spend all week writing your name on cards and then just had these fellows one of them when they come after you?"

"Now, that's real smart thinking," chuckled grandpa Halas.

Bear spirit never has been higher. Captain George Connor, who was given the game ball after the Rams contest — the first time it was presented to this great lineman in eight seasons with the club — summed it up this way:

"The spirit is so outstanding on this team that I've learned a brand new meaning of fellowship. Nobody is jealous of anybody else. Sure we play for money. But we also play for pride."

"I can't see us having a let-down. We'll be up and ready for every game left on the schedule. We are determined to win the championship."

Even the Ram players were glad to pay tribute to the Bears.

Elroy Hirsch said: "Definitely the best all-around Bear team I've ever played against. Their linebacking is terrific."

Norm Van Brocklin — "You just can't get away from guys like George Connor, Larry Strickland, Ed Sprinkle and Bill George once they get through the line. And that Bear line is pure murder. I didn't have time to spot a receiver. When I dropped back and turned around to look, there always seemed to be a mass of Bears clutching for me."

Tom Fears — "The Bear team is so well-balanced it is hard to believe."

'Ringer' Alarms U.S. Golf Assn.

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States Golf Assn., alarmed over the revelation that a "ringer" had played in an invitation tournament on which a big betting pool depended, Monday called on all its member clubs to discourage organized gambling on golf and to tighten up enforcement of the rules.

In a strongly worded statement headed "the integrity of golf is at stake," USGA president Isaac B. Grainger said the incident at the Deepdale Club's invitation four-ball tournament in September had "disgraced the good name of golf" and emphasized the dangers inherent in organized gambling.

Early this month, Charles (Bud) Helmar of West Springfield, Mass., admitted he had played in the Deepdale tournament under an assumed name and that he and his partner had won it with the aid of falsified handicaps. The USGA is investigating the amateur status of the players involved.

Grainger's message, sent to the governing boards of all USGA member clubs, to all other golf associations and to USGA committee members said:

"Some clubs sponsoring gambling tournaments of various types have been inclined to feel that such things could not happen to them. The fact is that cheating can happen wherever there is a motive other than the play of the game for the game's sake."

"Golf is being used for ulterior purposes in some quarters. This is often reflected by such things as: (A) the attempt by some persons to keep their handicaps high (B) 'Soft' local rules such as so-called 'Winter Rules' when there is no justification. (C) Over-commercialization of the game. (D) Winking at violations of the rules of amateur status."

NEW YORK (AP)—Sandy Amoroso, whose great catch helped preserve Brooklyn's World Series shutout in the final game, earned his chance to play with the Dodgers by leading the International League in hitting in 1953. He batted .353 for Montreal. His manager was Walter Alston.

Buckeye Coach Puts Iron Fence Around Gridiron

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—With the conference championship hanging on the outcome of Saturday's climactic game with Michigan, Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State Monday put an iron curtain around his practices.

Lone representatives of three Columbus papers will be permitted to watch the workouts, Hayes said, but all must wear red shirts and remain together on the sidelines.

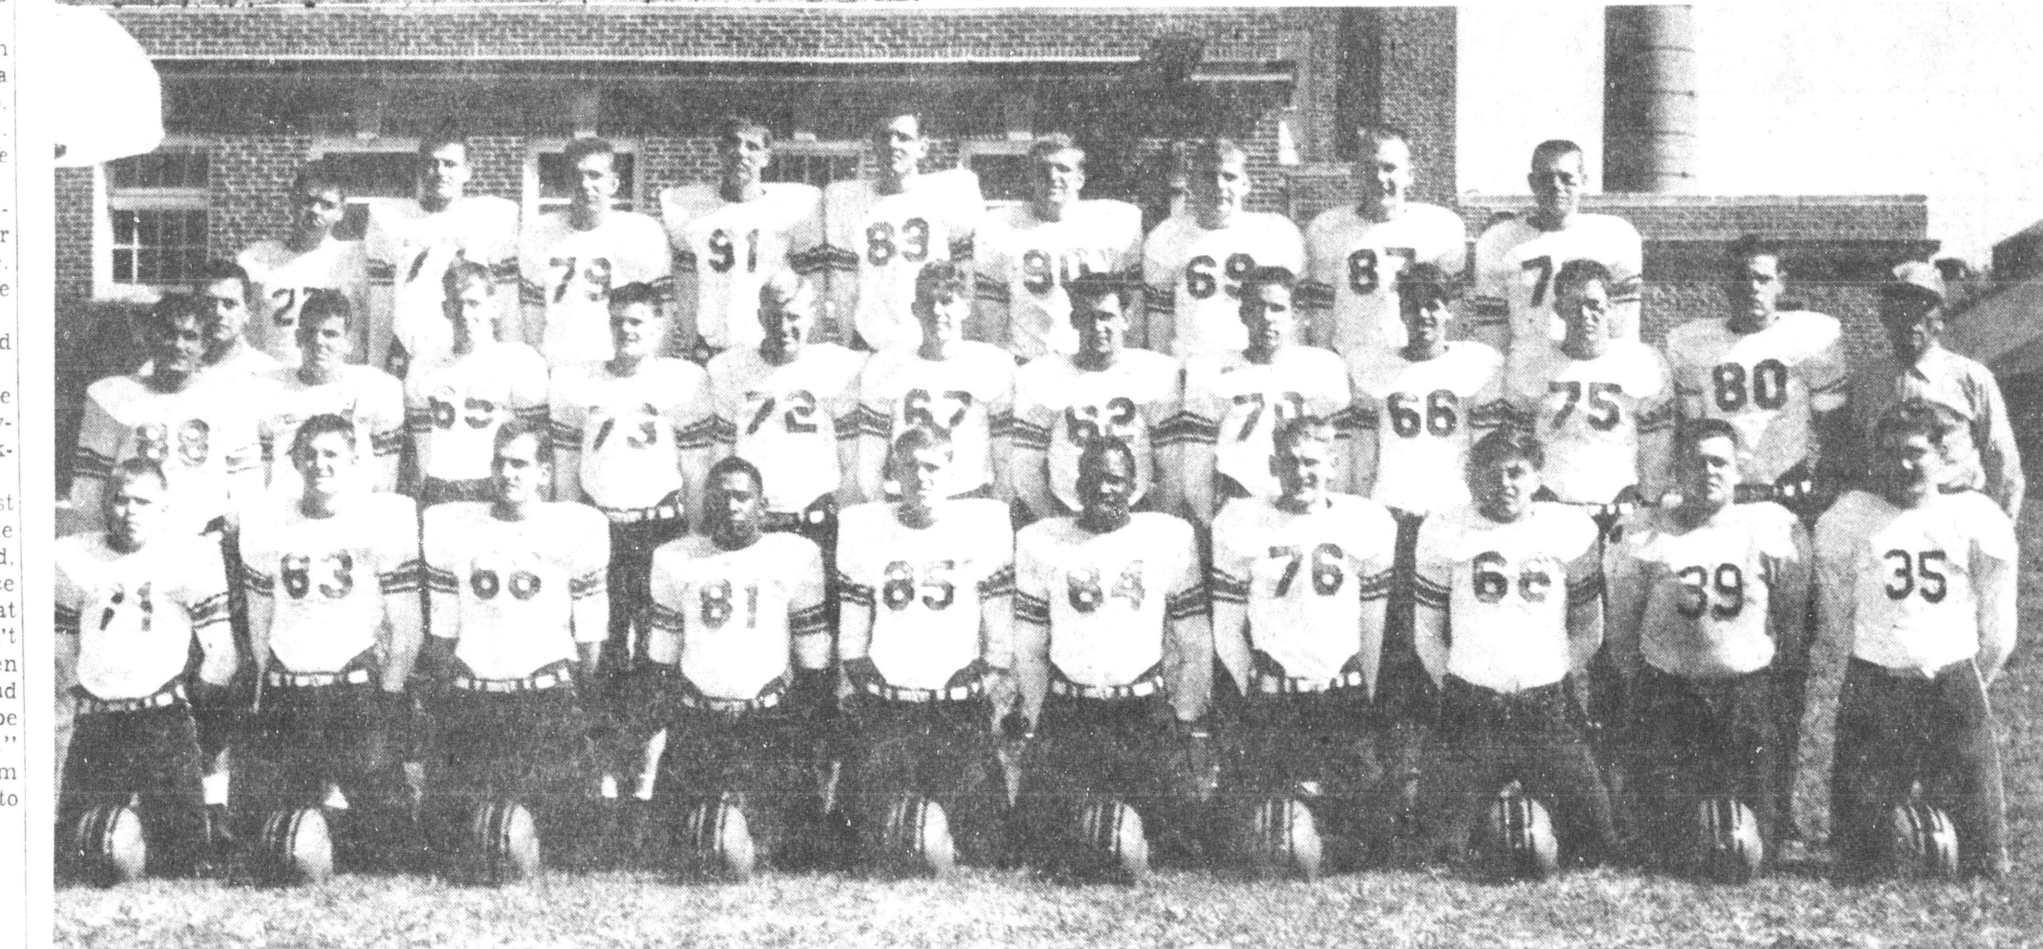

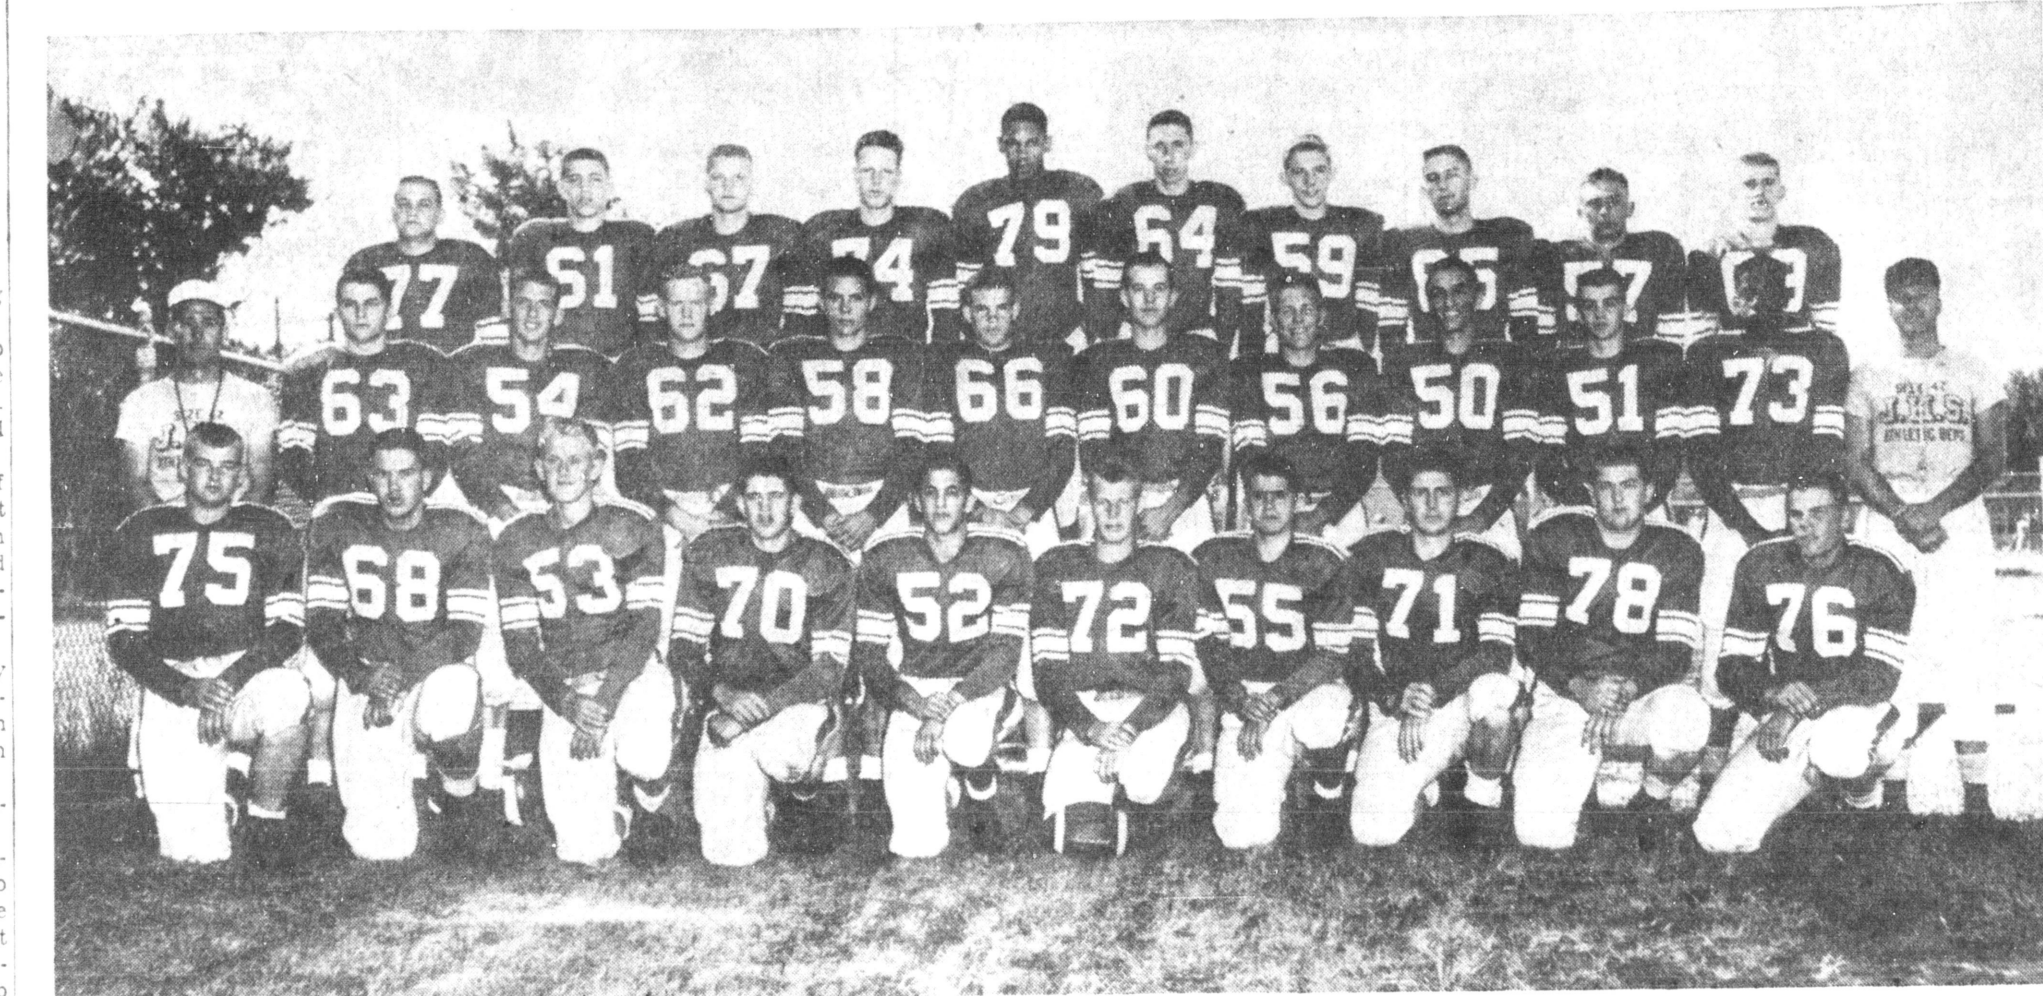

Admittance of the three scribes came as a compromise after Hayes decreed no one should see the final preparations for the big one with the Wolverines.

"I certainly am not questioning the integrity of you fellows," Hayes told his weekly press lunch guests, "but we must guard against leaks. Last season we had a letter from Michigan, telling us what the Wolverines were planning for us. And Michigan also learned from down here what we were planning. We'll just have to keep everyone out."

Newsmen who have covered daily practices all season objected, and Hayes finally decided to allow the red-shirted trio to watch the workouts. He will be available for interviews each evening after practice to others barred from the field, the Buck mentor said.

Suomi College in Michigan claims to be the only Finnish-American institution of higher learning in the United States.

The Jacksonville High School Crimson, shown at top, ended their season Friday night by defeating Hannibal 19-12. It was the sixth victory of the year for the locals to go with two losses and one tie. The ISD Tigers ended their season Friday night by dropping their first game of the year to a determined Galva eleven by the score of 14-7. Previously the Tigers had won eight games in a row.

Ohio State Hopes To Break 18 Year Jinx At Michigan Saturday

By JOE FALLS
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Although the records say otherwise, Coach Bennie Oosterbaan insists there will be no home field advantage Saturday when Michigan meets Ohio State in the Big Ten's climactic game of the season.

Every seat in Michigan Stadium has been sold out for weeks — 97,239 in all. It is the third such sellout this season.

"We have the advantage of all our home games — except one," Oosterbaan said Monday. "That's for Ohio State. Then it's all even."

The immense Michigan Stadium — which bears a strong resemblance to a Mexico bull ring — has given more than a few teams a case of the jitters. Some experts go as far as to say it gives Michigan a one to two touchdown advantage for any game.

While the Buckeyes themselves play in an 80,000-plus stadium in Columbus, they've had little success against Michigan. Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State Monday put an iron curtain around his practices.

Lone representatives of three Columbus papers will be permitted to watch the workouts, Hayes said, but all must wear red shirts and remain together on the sidelines.

Admittance of the three scribes came as a compromise after Hayes decreed no one should see the final preparations for the big one with the Wolverines.

"I certainly am not questioning the integrity of you fellows," Hayes told his weekly press lunch guests, "but we must guard against leaks. Last season we had a letter from Michigan, telling us what the Wolverines were planning for us. And Michigan also learned from down here what we were planning. We'll just have to keep everyone out."

Newsmen who have covered daily practices all season objected, and Hayes finally decided to allow the red-shirted trio to watch the workouts. He will be available for interviews each evening after practice to others barred from the field, the Buck mentor said.

Michigan holds a 33-14 margin.

"It's surprising how many times the Ohio-Michigan game has figured in the Big Ten title," Oosterbaan said. "I've never seen anything like it."

Saturday's meeting marks the 15th time in 21 years that the game, as the final one of the season, will have a bearing on the Big Ten championship.

This time it's an all-or-nothing situation for Michigan. A victory and the Wolverines can pack for a Rose Bowl date in Pasadena. A loss — or even a tie — and Michigan State will get the nod.

The Wolverines will go into the game in their finest physical condition of the season. The nagging injuries which have plagued them have disappeared, and Oosterbaan will have a sound club ready for the Ohio invasion.

Their main objective will be to stop halfback Howard Cassidy, who has scored 14 touchdowns — or nine more than any Michigan player.

Since the stadium was built in 1927, Ohio State has won only four of 14 games here, two ending in ties. The Bucks' last victory was back in 1937.

Since then, the teams have met in Ann Arbor eight times, with Michigan winning on six occasions and two games ending in ties.

In the overall series on both sides.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A decision on Johnny Podres' draft status was deferred Monday pending a consultation with a specialist about the ailing back of Brooklyn's World Series pitching hero.

Army First Lt. Preston Glover said that he was trying to arrange an appointment with a Troy orthopedic man and that a decision might be made Tuesday on whether to reject or accept Johnny for military service.

WAGERING AT ALL-TIME HIGH AT CHICAGO TRACKS

CHICAGO (AP)—Wagering zoomed to a record high although attendance dipped slightly this year at Chicago's five thoroughbred racing tracks and two downstate. Fairmount and Cahokia Downs.

Betting at the seven tracks amounted to an official $204,991,019 for 294 days of racing. The former high was $198,042,882 in 1946. Total attendance for 1955 hit 2,944,389. This was short of the record 3,020,920 set in 1954. There were four more racing days in 1954.

There are about 5,260 new cases of pneumonia a day among Americans.

All-Star Girls Match Features Mat Program

Close to one thousand persons gathered last night in the local high school gymnasium to see the first all-star girls tag match ever presented before a local audience. In this match, the team of Ada Ash and Shirley Strimple defeated a duo of Mona Waukazo and Lorraine Johnson in a two out of three falls event.

Ada Ash, the gal with the pink hair, and her running mate, Shirley Strimple, lost the first fall to Waukazo and Johnson in 11:34. Some 10 minutes later, Ash and Strimple came back to take the second fall and ended the match a short time later with their second fall. This was the co-feature bout on the triple header card.

The feature event turned out to be a victory for Reggie Lasowski over the favorite The Mighty Atlas. Lasowski, who was none too popular with the fans, took the first fall in 17:20 with a submission hold. Six minutes later The Mighty Atlas got his chance and scored with his famous Atlas Nelson hold. The third fall and the match went to Lasowski with a body press.

The opening match, a battle between Seymour Koenig and Bernito Gardini was won by Koenig with two straight falls. The first coming when Gardini was disqualified and the second coming on a back stretch.

The local Knights of Columbus announced last night the next would be held sometime in January. A Japanese judo jackets bout will be on this program as well as another all-star girls match. Verne Gagne also may appear.

OREGON GRID COACH HUNG IN EFFIGY

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Coach Len Casanova, whose University of Oregon football team lost to Stanford, 44-7, Saturday, was hung in effigy on the campus Monday.

The effigy was built by students last week for a rally to encourage Casanova and the team as they prepared for the game with traditional rival Oregon State next Saturday.

Apparently, however, a group disgruntled over the Stanford beating decided to hang it, instead. It was lifted up with a sign "Casanova, go south," then carted away and buried.

Later the effigy was recovered and other students gathered around it and such encouraging signs as "we're behind you, Cas." It depicted Casanova sitting on a throne.

SELLOUT FOR GAME SATURDAY AT UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP)—All 101,356 seats in the coliseum have been sold—at $5 per copy—for Saturday's Pacific Coast Conference football battle between UCLA and the University of Southern California.

It's the week's televised battle and the TV showing will include Los Angeles along with the rest of the nation. Despite that, there were reports that midfield tickets via scalpers were bringing $20 a piece.

Meanwhile Coach Red Sanders of UCLA was revising his attack plans since the loss of pass-tossing Ronnie Knox who suffered a broken bone in his leg during the 19-17 victory over Washington last Saturday.

The Bruins had hoped the passing of Knox would keep the Trojan defense from stacking in tight to stop the Bruin ground game.

Attendance Drops Only 2 Per Cent In Minor Leagues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Minor league baseball attracted 19,042,825 paying customers last season, a drop of 542,994 from the previous year.

But George M. Trautman, president of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues, viewed the drop with optimism.

"That's the smallest drop in five years, only 2 per cent," he said of the minors said. "Maybe we have turned the corner and will be on our way up soon."

"We are especially happy that we lost no leagues in mid-season, as we did a year ago. Minor league baseball is healthy, and will get more robust."

The minors have dwindled in both attendance and customers since 1950. That year there were 58 leagues in operation, and they played to 35,616,702 fans. The number of leagues was down to 33 in 1955, a loss of 25 circuits and 16,573,877 fans in five years.

Iowa TV Stations Seek To Carry Iowa-Irish Game

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. was asked Monday to permit the Iowa-Notre Dame game at South Bend, Ind., Saturday to be carried as a telecast by several Iowa stations.

Such permission apparently would involve an exception to NCAA rules governing college football telecasts.

William B. Querton, general manager of WMT-TV, Cedar Rapids, said he wants NCAA permission to provide the Iowa-Notre Dame telecast to the four CBS television stations in Iowa.

Querton last Saturday said "NCAA has a monopoly in football and apparently doesn't care what the public generally desires to see." He said broadcasters and the public "are in the middle" of an apparent dispute between large schools and the NCAA over NCAA television policies.

In his latest request, Querton said that since WMT-TV is the home station for State University of Iowa football telecasts and the Saturday game is a sellout WMT-TV is entitled to telecast it.

"But the heavy line cost and pickup charge cannot be justified for one station," he said. Querton wants permission to make the telecast available also to stations in Des Moines, Mason City and Sioux City.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director at Kansas City, said "provisions of the 1955 NCAA television plan provide that NCAA telecasts can be released only in the home television market areas of the two teams involved."

Byers also said any requests for sellout exemptions on the Iowa-Notre Dame game would have to be transmitted first to Douglas Mills of the University of Illinois, district member of the NCAA television committee. Mills then would submit the request to the committee.

At Illinois, Mills said Notre Dame some time ago applied for and received permission for local station coverage of the Iowa-Notre Dame game. He said the same could be done with WMT if the Iowa athletic director submitted a request through Mills.

Mills did not immediately comment, however, on the WMT suggestion that it be given permission to relay an Iowa-Notre Dame telecast to three other Iowa stations.

An unauthorized Iowa telecast of the Iowa-Minnesota game at Iowa City Nov. 5 by KRNT-TV, Des Moines, brought a statement from the Big 10 television committee that it was "exploring the legal reprisals possible."

Sports Scribes Name Walt Alston 'Manager Of Year'

NEW YORK (AP)—Walter Alston, first to bring a world championship to Brooklyn, was voted the National League's "manager-of-the-year" Monday by members of the Baseball Writers' Assn. of America.

The 44-year-old Oklahian, who succeeded where eleven other managers failed, received 57 of the 99 votes cast by major league writers in an annual poll conducted by the Associated Press to lead the rest of the field by a comfortable margin.

Mayo Smith, who in his freshman season piloted the Philadelphia Phils into fourth place, was runner-up with 30 votes. Leo Durocher, who resigned at the end of the season after his defending champion New York Giants wound up a poor third, was named on nine ballots to land third place. One vote each went to Birdie Tebbets of the fifth place Cincinnati Reds and Fred Haney of the last place Pittsburgh Pirates. Haney was replaced by Bobby Bragan at the end of the season.

Somewhat of a "goat" in 1953 when the Dodgers, in their first year under his direction, finished a disappointing second, Alston is now one of Brooklyn's "heroes" as a result of the Dodgers' easy pennant victory and World Series triumph over their perennial tormentors, the New York Yankees.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The Stock Market drove ahead in one of the strongest advances of the year Monday and neared a new record high mark.

Blue chip stocks were in the forefront of the rise with gains that frequently amounted to 1 to 5 points and sometimes pushed out to around 8 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced $2.60, the third largest gain of the year, and closed at $179.90.

That puts the average only $1.60 away from the record high mark established Sept. 23 just before the great reaction that started with news of the president's heart attack.

The average now has regained more than 91 per cent of the losses suffered in the market's tumble. That fall, incidentally, was the greatest since Oct. 28, 1929, in the midst of the historic 1929 crash.

Brokers pointed out that the rise, and throughout the current recovery sweep upward, is based on high earnings, substantial dividend payments, and on stock splits and hopes of splits.

The American Stock Exchange was higher on volume of 850,000 shares as compared with 690,000 shares Friday.

Corporate bonds were higher while U.S. government issues in the over the counter market were steady.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

CHICAGO (AP)—Butcher hogs broke 75 cents to $1.25 to a new low since 1942 Monday. Sows dropped 75 cents to $1.00.

Behind the downturn were the largest salable receipts for any day since 1944, totaling 32,000 head. All the offerings were not absorbed, about 2,000 head being held over for Tuesday's market.

Most 200 to 220 pound butchers brought $12.00 to $12.50 with 230 to 290 pounders at $11.25 to $12.00. Sows sold from $10.00 to $11.00.

About 250 head, closely sorted for other arrivals, set a top at $12.90. This was the lowest top since Feb. 19, 1942, when $12.80 was the peak.

Steers and heifers sold steady to 50 cents higher in a very uneven market. Prime steers topped at $24.50. Most choice and prime were taken at $19.00 to $23.50. Prime heifers topped at $22.00. Most good to prime went at $18.00 to $21.50. Salable cattle receipts totaled 21,000.

Cows sold steady to 25 cents higher at $8.25 to $11.00 for utility and commercial and $6.50 to $8.50 for canners and cutters. Vealers were about steady. Good to prime sold for $19.00 to $23.00.

Salable sheep receipts totaled 5,500. Lambs broke 50 cents to $1.00 in a slow trade. Good to prime woolled lambs brought $17.00 to $19.00 with only a few commanding the latter figure.

CORN PRICES DROP WITH HEAVY RECEIPTS

By WILLIAM FERRIS
CHICAGO (AP)—Corn prices retreated on the Board of Trade Monday under the weight of the largest carlot receipts of the cash grain in seven years.

Prices did not break at any time, however, and closing quotations were above the day's lows.

Oats were under the influence of corn's action and actually wound up looking weaker than the yellow grain. Soybeans eased for small losses. Wheat was off early but came ahead quickly toward the finish, ending at the day's best prices.

Wheat closed unchanged to 1 cent higher, corn 3/4 to 1 cent lower, oats 3/4-1 1/2 lower, rye unchanged to 3/4 higher, soybeans 1/4-3/4 lower and lard 18 cents lower to 3 cents a hundred pounds higher. Cash corn receipts totaled 842 cars, the largest for any day since Nov. 8, 1948. This was equal to 1,515,000 bushels. In addition trucks brought in 355,000 bushels and barges 125,000 bushels, giving a total of 1,995,000 bushels.

Farmers liquidated hogs as well as corn. Hog prices broke to a new low in nearly 14 years and that had a depressing influence on corn. Hogs are the biggest consumers of corn, provided the price relationship between the two is right.

Prices declined several cents in the cash market. Late in the day No. 2 yellow corn sold at $1.13 3/4-1.16. This remained above the year's low of three weeks ago when the price range was $1.13-1.15.

Export business in corn was limited to the usual small sales to Great Britain. Failure of the predicted severe cold to develop in much of the main livestock feeding belt over the weekend caused some selling in yellow grain futures.

In wheat the new crop months were first to firm. This reflected continued dry weather in much of the Southwest, where rain is needed for the winter wheat crop.

Old crop months came ahead late in the day. Traders said Greece was expected to buy 2,238,000 bushels of wheat soon. Yugoslavia still has quite a bit of the bread grain to buy. While sales come from government stocks, these transactions do reduce the country's wheat surplus.

Soybean receipts were not heavy but there was no news to inspire aggressive buying. Spain purchased 60 million pounds of refined soybean oil. The American Soybean Assn. said producers had sold a large percentage of their soybean crop.

Loose lard sank 1/4 cent to 10 cents a pound and most lard futures went down with the cash market.

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Convertible issues moved up steadily to lead the bond market higher Monday. U. S. treasury securities were irregular in the over-the-counter market.

German dollar liens declined while South American issues were firm in a generally lower foreign section.

Corporate volume increased to $4,420,000 par value from $3,430,000 last Friday.

Policy On Mother, Who Was Passenger, Helped Break Case

Graham said as soon as they had left, he transferred the dynamite sticks, caps and wire to a paper sack.

"I then wrapped about three or four feet of binding cord around the sack of dynamite to hold the dynamite sticks in place around the caps, leaving the wires which were attached to the dynamite caps extending out of the paper sack," he explained.

He said "the purpose of the two caps was in case one of the caps failed to function and ignite the dynamite."

Graham said he set the bomb to explode in 90 minutes, the maximum time allowed him by the timing device.

He said that when the 90 minutes were up, "I knew the circuit between the caps and the battery which was broken by the timer would be closed by the timer mechanism and detonate the caps, which would detonate the dynamite."

Graham did not reply when asked whether he felt remorse over the crash.

Graham waived a hearing on a "peace-time sabotage" charge and was jailed when he was unable to supply $100,000 bond.

The sabotage charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Kelley met with state prosecutors to consider whether the slim, youthful - appearing defendant should be turned over to them for prosecution on murder charges, punishable by death in Colorado.

A decision on further prosecution will be reached within 48 hours, Kelley indicated.

"One element in breaking the case," Kelley said, was an air flight insurance policy for $37,500 on Graham's mother, Mrs. Daisy King.

FBI agents, who arrested Graham, reported he took out the policy at the Denver Airport shortly before he boarded the ill-fated plane for Alaska. Ironically, the policy was invalid because the mother had not signed it.

The DCGB plane blew up near Longmont, Colo., 11 minutes after leaving the airport Nov. 1. Sabotage was suspected immediately as witnesses reported the craft exploded in flight.

Wreckage and bodies were scattered for nearly two miles over a sugar beet field.

The federal complaint filed by the FBI accused Graham of placing aboard the plane "a number of sticks of dynamite attached to a battery with timing mechanism in the form of a bomb."

Kelley told newsmen after the arraignment, "I don't know whether you're aware Graham has admitted placing the device which caused the explosion on the plane."

A few minutes later in response to a question, he said Graham made "a written admission." Kelley refused to disclose details of the statement.

A reporter asked the prosecutor if the sabotage "was a one-man job or were others involved." Kelley said he had "no comment at this time."

Graham, who is married and has two children, Allan, 2, and Susan, nine months, had been working with his mother in operating a drive-in restaurant in Denver. Officers said Graham was using his income to pay off $4,200 worth of checks he forged against a Denver concern. Mrs. King paid $2,500 of the amount at the time her son received a five-year suspended sentence on conviction of forgery in 1951.

Graham was in line to receive a fourth of his mother's estate, estimated at $150,000.

Man Kills Wife, Three Children, Shoots Himself

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A quiet, mild-mannered business man, devoted to his family but possibly harassed by financial difficulties and overwork, killed his wife and three children Monday, set fire to their bodies and took his own life with the same weapon.

Police Chief Emil Bartels of suburban Shorewood, where the family lived in a palatial home, called it murder and suicide.

Dead were Elmore A. Buckethall, 41, a Milwaukee plumbing contractor; his wife, Mildred, 40, and their children, Bonnie Lynn, 12, Cynthia, 10, and Thomas, 8.

Bartels said the evidence indicated that Buckethall had gone to his plumbing shop late Sunday night, piled up business records—ledgers and other papers in the basement, saturated them with gasoline and set them on fire.

Then, Bartels theorized, Buckethall drove home early Monday, carried a case of motor oil into the house and after shooting his wife and children, poured oil over their bodies, ignited it, and killed himself with an automatic pistol.

The bodies of the five persons were found in their second floor bedrooms by police who went to the home to check into the incendiary aspects of the plumbing shop fire.

CGT, Backer Of Peron, Issues Call

closed by walkouts and army units were called out to disperse demonstrators. Public transportation was interrupted by the strikers, but was resumed under joint army-police guard.

The crisis loomed almost immediately after Aramburu replaced former Provisional President Eduardo Lonardi in a bloodless coup Sunday.

There was a rumor that Lonardi had been arrested. But a police custodian regularly assigned to his home said "absolutely not" when asked if Lonardi was under house detention.

The reasons for the strike call were not immediately clear. One version was that the CGT wants to put pressure on Aramburu in hopes of gaining government agreement to the ouster of insurgent factions. Anti-Peronist groups have seized a number of key union halls since Peron's fall and have proclaimed themselves the real voice of Argentine labor.

Officials of the pressmen's union, a CGT affiliate, were said to have called on their members to obey the strike order as a protest against the seizure of La Prensa and El Litoral.

The internal conflict within the CGT plagued Lonardi throughout his 51 days in power. And Aramburu had scarcely assumed office when he was faced with a demand by labor leaders for a clear-cut government ruling on who should control the unions.

The CGT secretaries general wired the new chief executive Sunday night demanding an audience to inform him of the turbulent situation in labor's ranks.

Advocates Eggs, Bacon For Babies Nine-Weeks-Old

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Success with a revolutionary baby-feeding system—under which the infant gets solid foods almost from birth and may work up to a "bacon and scrambled eggs" breakfast at only nine weeks—was reported today by a Miami, Fla., doctor.

Dr. Walter W. Sackett Jr., originator of the system, granted that its use is still highly controversial among pediatricians. But he said he himself has now used it on 700 babies in six years "and as far as their physical well being is concerned all are in line with, or slightly above the norms."

Ordinarily, infants don't get solid foods until two or three months after birth.

Sackett said that for one thing, the system leads to "much fewer eating problems" as the child develops.

Also since the system involves placing infants on "three meals a day" at about 10 weeks—with no food between meals and the dropping at that time of "the midnight feeding"—Sackett said parents "are happier and more emotionally stable" than those who feed their infants on "demand."

In this same connection, the babies themselves "are far happier and more contented babies" because they "early become independent and learn to amuse themselves because of the fact they are left to their own devices" between scheduled meals.

The doctor told about it at the 49th annual convention of the Southern Medical Assn., the nation's second largest general medical organization.

ATTEND FUNDRAISER
Mrs. Carrie Watts and son, Halold Watts, of this city attended the service Sunday at Pleasant Plains for Ben Smith.

City Will Resurvey Subway Project At Point Along Wabash

Possibilities of building a subway somewhere along the Wabash railroad will be explored by the city council as the result of discussion last night. There was subway talk several years ago, but the matter was dropped at that time.

Alderman Fitzsimmons of the police committee called attention to a fatal accident at the North Main street crossing last week. He said that although the crossing is protected by flasher lights it probably could be made safer if automatic gates were installed.

Alderman Souza said he believed expenditures on safety should be put into a subway, which would provide traffic with a north-south movement without the possibility of being blocked by trains. From this point on the entire council joined in a discussion of what might be done in the way of locating a subway at North Main street or other places. Mayor Hoagland recalled a conference with an engineer of the Illinois Interstate Commerce Commission here several years ago, at which the engineer proposed the closing of seven street crossings along the Wabash, with added safety installations for others.

North Main Once Studied
The mayor said at one time a subway on North Main street was considered, but that apparent heavy costs and drainage problems were immediately brought to the front. Later, he said, other locations for a subway were proposed.

Several aldermen mentioned last night that an underpass in the west section of the city to serve Passavant Area hospital would be advantageous.

At the conclusion of the discussion Mayor Hoagland recommended a resurvey of the possibilities for an underpass along the Wabash. City Attorney W. R. Bellatti was instructed to communicate with the Commerce Commission. The mayor said an engineer probably would come to the city to talk with members of the council.

A resolution accepting the new plat of the Illinois Power Co. addition on East State street, east of Johnson street, as recommended by the Jacksonville Plan Commission, was adopted on motions by Aldermen Allen and DeFries. The new addition was platted so that construction of a storage area could be carried on.

Christmas TB Seal Sale Starts In County Nov. 16

Illinois Tuberculosis Association's 50th anniversary Seal Sale campaign opens November 16. The "Golden Year" campaign holds a special meaning as TB workers look to the tiny seals for hope of eradicating tuberculosis by providing the means for accelerated medical research and case-finding programs.

The seals will carry on the great American holiday tradition when the small boy and girl featured on the stamps become a familiar sight during the Christmas Season.

Mrs. Verne Anderson, Seal Sale Chairman for Morgan County, reports that help was most willingly given to promote the Morgan County Seal Sale by the 8 and 40 Auxiliary of which Mrs. Barbara Wood is president; the Auxiliary of the Amvets Post No. 100 of which Mrs. Myron Anderson is president, Radio Station WLOS, the Fox Illinois Theatre, Times Theatre and Girl Scout Intermediate Troop No. 64, South Jacksonville, of which Mrs. Norma Crocker is leader; Troop No. 46, Lincoln School of which Mrs. Virginia Hopper is leader; Troop No. 26 Washington School, leader, J. Kant; Troop No. 3, Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School, leader, Helen Sweeney, and Girl Scout Troop in Meredosia with Mrs. Pauline Steinberg as leader.

Stop Signs On Goitra
The council passed a resolution on motions by Aldermen Allen and Fitzsimmons, designating Superior avenue as a through street from Clay to Hardin avenue, and ordering erection of stop signs at both sides of Goitra avenue where it intersects with Superior.

Requests for stop signs to regulate traffic at the junctions of Mound avenue, Grove and Park streets, were reported by Alderman Sims.

A suggestion to restrict parking to one side of East State street adjacent to the Illinois Braille & Sight Saving School was made by Alderman McHatton. Action on these two proposals probably will come up at another meeting.

The movement on the part of the council to make available old bicycles now in possession of the police department to underprivileged children was carried into effect by a resolution, adopted on motions by Aldermen Allen and McHatton.

McHatton at a meeting one week ago urged the council to take action in releasing old unclaimed wheels which have been accumulating in the police department over a long period of years. Last night he said a service club is expected to provide a fund for the repair of old bicycles, which would be given to needy children.

Pass Bicycle Resolution
The council passed a resolution authorizing the chief of police to give a seven day notice on old bikes, which will be sold for junk, and the repair of other wheels which are found to be in better shape.

An ordinance reducing the movie theater license fees from $325 to $100 per year received final reading and passed on motions by Aldermen Hall and Matthews.

Another ordinance, designating a proposed new street along the town brook from Diamond street to Lincoln avenue as an arterial highway, passed on motions by Aldermen Sims and Fitzsimmons. The ordinance also carried the official name of the street, which will be Hoagland boulevard, voted by the council last week in recognition of Mayor Hoagland.

A series of resolutions for payment of light department improvements was read by Attorney Orville N. Foreman, special counsel, and passed on routine votes.

Foreman announced that $325,000 electric revenue bonds were delivered by city officials in Chicago last week, and the funds banked to be available for the extension of the power system.

Alderman Sims reported details of a conference in Chicago, where representatives of 135 cities from 18 states discussed methods to combat the Dutch Elm disease. The conference was sponsored by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Sims presented each alderman with a brochure prepared by the Illinois State Natural History Survey, setting forth many facts about the disease which has made inroads on elms in many sections of the country, including Illinois.

Sanitation, the cleaning up and burning of infected trees and stumps, and spraying of trees with a mist spray were the chief methods put forward at the meeting. Bill Buchanan accompanied Alderman Sims as a representative of the Chamber of Commerce.

Weather Balloon Found On Farm Near Alexander

An Alexander man, Elmo Rubie, has turned over to the county sheriff's officials a United States Signal Corps weather balloon which he found Monday in a field on his farm outside Alexander.

The balloon, called a radiosonde, had a small white plastic box attached to the base with a large transparent blue tube filled with instruments protruding from one side. The box and tube were attached to a parachute of bright orange silk. There was no return address on the parcel and the sheriff's office is making an effort to find where it belongs.

Such balloons, which soar to a height of fifteen and one-half miles before being released, are used by the weather bureau to find temperature, pressure and humidity in the upper atmosphere to aid research, and are found occasionally in this part of the country.

Grand Jury Indicts Dale Gilpin, 16, On Manslaughter Charge

A Morgan county grand jury indicted Dale Gilpin, 16, on a charge of manslaughter in an indictment returned at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon to Judge Clem Smith.

State's Attorney Albert W. Hall presented information to the grand jury which also returned an indictment against Larry G. York, 18, on a charge of larceny of a motor vehicle.

The grand jury was impelled by Judge Smith at 10 o'clock Monday morning. The judge appointed Elfred Detmer of Chapin as foreman.

After the grand jury made its report, Gilpin and York were brought into court. Both defendants told the court that they did not have counsel or funds to provide counsel and the judge appointed Robert E. Bradney to represent them.

Judge Smith placed Gilpin's bond at $10,000 and York's at $5,000. Both will be arraigned at 10 A. M., November 23.

The information against Gilpin charged that he shot and killed his father LeRoy (Pee Wee) Gilpin at the family home at 1043 North Diamond street Friday night, Nov. 11.

Marion O. Hobson, 32, of Versailles and Meredosia was brought before Judge Smith late Monday afternoon on an information charging him with forgery. He waived indictment by the grand jury and the court appointed Robert E. Bradney to act as his counsel.

After the court had instructed him of his rights, Hobson said he wished to enter a plea of guilty. The court informed Hobson that he would not be eligible for probation.

Hobson then entered his plea of guilty and the judge sentenced him to a minimum of one year and a maximum of three years in the Illinois penitentiary.

Burglars Call Couple Away At Wedding Event

JERSEYVILLE—Burglars rifled the country residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Frank Rural Route Two, two miles northeast of Jerseyville, prior to midnight Saturday, while the couple was away from home attending a wedding reception.

When they returned to their home soon after midnight, they discovered that the front door lock had been broken and the door pried open.

The burglars had rifled the drawers in dressers and chests in the dwelling, but had apparently been frightened away during the course of their operations, for they walked away from the place without taking a sum of money kept in a jar, a diamond ring and a gold watch which were in one of the drawers opened by the thieves.

An inventory of items in the house was being taken Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Frank, but the thieves had evidently left the premises hurriedly without taking anything of value.
